President's Piece

Summertime Boogie!

Here it is: the moment your child has been waiting for—summer break. A time when he or she can sleep in, catch up on all those television shows you “taped” because they aired when children needed to be in bed, and just enjoy a few months of rest and relaxation. Who are we kidding? Summer break may be a break for our kids, but we are still working—working on getting them to and from camp, to and from a play date, and to and from our vacation destination. So, since you know you will already be working, don't forget to continue the important work you do for our students and our schools and continue planning for the Parent Teacher Association (PTA) year ahead. You can plan ahead by doing the following:

- Order your Box of Possibilities National PTA support kit.
- Have your Audit Committee meet and complete your year-end financial review.
- Attend the National PTA Convention in Memphis, June 10 through 13 (if you are able), and the Kentucky PTA Convention, July 16 and 17 (definitely!).
- Gather your new board members, your returning board members, and people who don't want to be a board member but do tons of work for the board, and go to the pool to celebrate your successes, ruminate on the misses, and say to one another, “Job well done.”

Why the pool? I was thinking the other day about what it means to me to be in the PTA. To me it is similar to going to the pool. We don't go swimming without advanced preparation. We gather all that we need—our towels, swimsuits and trunks, goggles, gear, and sunscreen. We get to the pool and arrange all of our accessories, our snacks, and our reading materials. That's what PTA training is all about—gathering all that you need to do your job. Some of us are quite comfortable sitting on the edge of the pool, dipping our toes into the water and pacing ourselves for the long day. Why a long day? Because not one of us is going to put all that effort into going to the pool if it isn't for a substantial length of time. Let's call it a commitment to the day at the pool, just like our commitment to the PTA. We are able to pace ourselves, engage ourselves in the task at hand, and once that task is complete, we are able to walk away from the pool—content. But some of us, well, we cannonball into the water. We throw caution to the wind and leap into the unknown. We don't know the temperature of the water. Frankly, we don't care. And, in our attempt to seize the moment, we splash those of you sitting on the edge of the pool. Not very nice of us, I know. But, before you complain about getting wet, remember this. You have your suit on, you have your towel, the sun will dry you, and it's only water. It doesn't hurt you. And every PTA needs both groups; those that sit on the edge, testing the temperature of the water, and those that cannonball into the water. If you haven't guessed by now, I like to cannonball into the pool. But whichever PTA personality you are, know that I'm sorry I got you wet, but trust me, it's only water. And it was a hot day. You needed to cool off. So, you are welcome.

Enjoy this time with your family and friends, but most of all, enjoy this time with your child. That's who we do this for. And remember, “Together We Can ... Make A Difference” for the 15th District PTA!

Myrdin Thompson
President

Kudos

Major kudos go to the Pleasure Ridge Park High School (PRP) Parent Teacher Student Association (PTSA)! 1,741 Members

Oops! Due to a calculation error, the PRP PTSA's membership numbers were listed incorrectly in the Awards Booklet, and the PTSA members didn't receive all the great awards they are entitled to. This has been corrected, and we wanted to share their actual membership count and awards!

Based on the corrected information, PRP will be receiving:

- A plaque for 200 members more than last year's membership.
- A certificate for 10 percent over last year.
- Recognition in the Top Ten—they are number four in our district.

The PRP PTSA has 1,741 members and is growing strong! Great job, PRP PTSA!

Read All About It!

It's time for the Summer Reading Challenge at the Louisville Free Public Library (LFPL) from June 1 through August 7! What a great opportunity for your child to get lost in a great adventure or to learn about children from another culture. The opportunities are endless!

This year, the library wants kids to "Think Globally, Read Locally." With this environmental theme in mind, the library will offer exciting green programs and great prizes to encourage reading for fun over the summer. The Summer Reading Challenge begins June 1 at all 18 library locations. It's easy and fun. Pick up a brochure, read at least ten books, turn in your list, and get your prize!

For more info, check out www.lfpl.org or just stop by your LFPL branch.

Have You Ordered Your Official PTA Kit for 2010-11 Yet?

Registration for the 2010-11 Official PTA Kit is now open! All local, council, district, and regional PTAs must register to receive their Official PTA Kit. The incoming 2010-11 PTA president or other authorized PTA leader must fill out the online registration form to select the preferred shipping address and date for the kit. The online order form will be available now through September 17. Kits will start shipping weekly in late June. The Official PTA Kit is available exclusively to PTAs in good standing. To order yours, go to www.pta.org/ptakit_register/.

Looking for Gently Used Books

Do you have some gently used children's books that your child no longer reads? We are collecting books to give to families who will be serving during our 15th District PTA's Back-to-School Blitz Week at the Clothing Assistance Program (CAP). We will serve more than 2,000 Jefferson County Public Schools (JCPS) students and their families during this one week alone. We need all types of books, from baby books to chapter books. Please share this with your PTA/PTSA members, and encourage them to donate books so that others can share the joy of reading and the journeys you can take through books.

Maybe you could hold a book drive and collect books or send home a flier about this. Have a contest among classes or teams. However you do it—please just do it! Contact Theresa Mayfield, fourth vice president, at 964-0703 to let her know you will be participating in this great project and to coordinate getting the books to CAP. Please coordinate with Theresa before you send the books to CAP so they don't get mixed in with donated clothing. Many thanks in advance. I look forward to hearing from you!

Have a Green Project? Need Money and Volunteers?

Do you have a great project but no money? We may be able to help you. We have been approached by a local company that is interested in providing financial and volunteer support to a school for a green project, including outdoor classrooms, fitness trails, and butterfly gardens. The project must have an impact on the school, students, and community, and the project must be self-sustaining after two to three years. If you are interested, please complete the brief application below and answer questions on a separate sheet and fax or mail to the 15th District PTA Office. We will forward all applications to the company, and they will contact you if they are interested in your project. If you need assistance or have questions, contact Paula Wolf (see contact info on back page of newsletter).

We would like to thank Binet and Churchill Park Schools student workers who came every Tuesday and Thursday to volunteer for us. Also, we would like to thank other student workers who did their community service hours at CAP. We couldn't do this program without the help from Carol Bartlett, all of the Family Resource and Youth Services Center (FRYSC) coordinators, neighborhood Place Parent coordinators, AmeriCorps workers, other school district employees, and many outside organizations and people who volunteered.

For Parents/Guardians of Children With Special Needs: Organizing Your Child's Records

As we reach the end of this school year, I know the natural feeling is to want to forget about school, meetings, and paperwork for a few months. But summertime is a great opportunity to get all of our paperwork organized. We all know there is a lot of information to keep up with when you have a child with special needs.

Being able to have your child's essential personal, medical, and education information organized and compiled into a binder is very useful and can save a lot of time at meetings, doctors' appointments, or in an emergency. I have compiled some suggestions to help make recordkeeping much easier.

You will need the following:

- A 3-inch or bigger binder
- Tab dividers (one to three packages)
- Sheet protectors (top-loading, clear, plastic)
- Ruled notebook paper
- Plain, white copy paper
- 3-hole punch

The first thing to do is to sort through the paperwork, being sure to compare documents that appear to be duplicates to be sure they are exactly the same. If you are not absolutely sure, keep and file both documents. If you have short pieces of papers or messages, attach them to a standard piece of paper to keep all documents uniform-size. Before punching holes in any papers, look to see if you will be losing any part of the reports. It is best to place reports and assessments, such as IEPs and psychological testing, in a sheet protector.

Next, label and arrange the dividers and sections as follows, arranging the documents from newest to oldest so that the current documentation is on top.

Profile Section

Type or print out a page with a list of pertinent personal information about your child, such as his or her full name, address, date of birth, Social Security number, doctors' and therapists' contact information, insurance information, emergency contacts, blood type, any food and drug allergies, likes and dislikes, strengths and weaknesses, and coping mechanisms. Include any information you feel is helpful to have readily available for appointments, meetings, and in case of an emergency.

History Section

This section includes immediate family tree information, including contact information, child and family health history, developmental history, and significant life events.

Medical/Hospitalizations/Medications Section

- Keep all letters to and from doctors. Keep a list of appointments, and list the date of the appointment, the doctor's name, the diagnosis, and the results of any tests.
- Create a record of all hospitalizations. List the hospital name, date of admission and discharge, reason for admission, diagnosis, tests completed, and the doctor's name. Also, include a copy of the hospital discharge summary.

- Create a record of all current medications. List the name of the medication, its purpose, the doctor who prescribed it, and contact information for the pharmacy.
- Create a record of all past medications. List the name of the medication, its purpose, the dates it was taken, the prescribing doctor, the medication's benefits, reactions and side effects, and why the medication was discontinued.

Diagnostic and Treatment Reports Section

- Create a list of current diagnoses. It is also helpful to keep a list of diagnoses that your child has been given, including the date and the doctor name.
- Ask for and keep a copy of all diagnostic tests, such as blood work and x-rays.
- Keep a record of any treatments and the benefits and side effects of each.
- Keep a copy of your child's immunization records.
- Keep copies of any articles or information you have shared with your child's doctors and/or therapists, and note his or her comments and suggestions.

Psychological/Behavioral/Social

This is where you file copies of reports and assessments of psychological, emotional, behavioral, or social concerns. Again, whenever an assessment or test is done, ask for a copy of the results and the doctor comments.

Educational Section

This will probably be one of the largest sections in the binder. If it seems too large, you may want to divide this into two or more sections to meet your needs. This section is where you will keep paperwork relating to your child's education. This includes an initial referral or study, letters, notes, report cards, assessments and testing reports, behavioral reports, work samples, eligibility documents, progress reports, and his or her IEP or 504 plan. You should also include the following, if applicable: Functional Behavior Assessment (FBA), Behavior Intervention Plan (BIP), behavior charts (positive and negative), and any other reports or paperwork that are a part of your child's education file. I personally keep at least three years' records in the current binder and file the other papers in a binder for reference. It is sometimes helpful to look back at previous goals and interventions to see how they worked.

Legal/Confidential Paperwork

This is where I keep such documents as a copy of his or her birth certificate, a Social Security card, an insurance card, adoption paperwork, subsidy agreements, and contact information.

Final Tips

- Make sure all documents, notes, and phone messages are dated.
- It is important to keep a copy of everything. Don't hesitate to ask for copies from anyone providing services for your child. You have a right to these documents.
- Keep this book current and updated. Accurate recordkeeping is essential! This book can be a great resource for you and others who are a part of your child's life.
- When you take your child to a doctor's or therapist's appointment or attend a meeting about your child, more time can be spent helping your child and meeting his or her needs because you have all of the information readily available.
- When you have the binder organized, create a master document list for the binder by sections. Add to your master list as you add to the binder.

I have just tried to give you some directions in creating your binder. There may be other documents you want to include, or some you don't want to include, some that don't apply to your child. You may also want to personalize it for you and your child. Remember to protect this binder, as it contains personal information about your family!

A Daily Journal

One final thing I would strongly recommend that you do is keep a daily journal. It doesn't have to be anything elaborate or long. It is simply writing a few notes at the end of the day about your child's school day, special events, successes, fears and anxieties, important family events, and anything that seems of importance about the day. This is a helpful tool down the road when you are trying to figure out why your child is struggling; it could be the anniversary of a difficult period in your child's life. You will also be able to see any patterns and be able to prepare yourself and others involved with your child to help him or her to use appropriate coping skills and have fewer behavioral issues. This will help your child deal with past issues successfully and develop confidence when he or she is able to get past a rough patch or avoid a hospitalization. This also helps reduce your stress level as a parent/guardian!

And, last but certainly not least, enjoy the summer with your family, relax a little, don't stress over the little things, choose your battles, create and record memories with your family, and take time for yourself—you deserve it!

Please let me know if I can be of service to you and your child. If there is a subject you would like more information on or would like to have shared in future newsletters issues, please let me know.
